

SPEAKER SPOTLIGHT

Dr. Suzanne Kearns

Associate Professor, University of Waterloo

Dealing with Labour Shortages

Join Suzanne as she discusses the role of competency-based education in supporting the next generation of aviation professionals, part of a special panel discussion which will help you develop tools and strategies to find and keep qualified pilots and staff.

Suzanne is an aviation academic, specializing in international aviation, human factors, safety management, and training methodologies. She is past president of the University Aviation Association (UAA), a Fellow of the Royal Aeronautical Society (FRAeS), and Vice-Chair of ICAO's next generation of aviation professionals program. She is the author of many articles and four books. Her most recent, "Fundamentals of International Aviation" is designed to support the next generation as they seek a career in aviation.
